

ABSTRACT

A method for specifying element information that should be used for a microarray chip in use.

Some of element spots 15 arranged on a microarray chip 10 are used as an index (17). By doing so, the microarray chip can be specified and management of the element information and use of the experimental information can be done automatically.